

Dear friends,
I will thank you both together for your very acceptable notes for I fear I have not matter enough for two distinct ones and as your letters always seem to be written properly it will make but little difference.
I have been to meeting all day, Mr. G. this morning certainly covered the case of the man for he prayed that the blessing of Providence might be extended to all in our land - I have not as yet signed much in to the papers of abolition here, but as to our petitions we are ready that I could carry one about in my walks - Lizzy's school-mistress is Miss Goodhue and the teacher of the Academy whose name is Reed the papist of Mr. Bailey & Miss Weston - Miss G. is a very pretty, pleasing girl & I shall commit Lizzy to her charge with pleasure. She seemed somewhat surprised that I should be willing to send her to a town-school. I agreed to you & I shall be happy to have Lizzy come out with her grand-papa on Saturday next. I presume by that ^{time} she will be quite prepared for a visit.

The book does not seem to have gone to W. H. for ought if all the contributions are as good as that which Deborah was kind enough to copy -

Has Lydia P. left any intelligence for me, at your house, I asked ^{her} to let me know, how Edward Grafton was -

Do you know whether Viri has called to announce his departure - I am going, my dear Detach, to claim of your kindness the delivery of a note & a few papers to my friend Helen & will you also ask her she now is - I wish I had two buses to send but then I had to beg for papers and not very plenty here & the winter has been not much their appearance or possibly it may be because I have not sought for them - Has Ann yet received the draft of Lewis Gunn? he has not forgotten the papers - Mutter desires her love - My love to Lizzy.

Your affec.

M. G. C.
